INSIDE VIEW

Rev. Kevin Scott

I recently returned from a trip to South America, visiting with our chaplains who work with the drivers in Brazil and Paraguay and exploring ideas on how we can help serve truck drivers around our world better. One thing that my trip reinforced was that truck driving has the same difficulties and struggles the world over. A driver's time is never their own—whether it's dispatchers, receivers, customs officials—someone else is always pushing the driver to hurry or making them wait. The lack of control is so frustrating to many.

I spent some time at the border crossing between Paraguay and Argentina and had the opportunity to speak with the drivers there and hear their stories. I spoke with a group of drivers, all from the same company, who had crossed from Argentina into Paraguay, but they couldn't leave the customs yard because there was an issue with their paperwork that the owner of the company had to fix. One of the drivers had been waiting there for 27 days! He said his home was less than two hours away, and he missed his wife and daughters, but he couldn't leave his truck and go home. Another had been there for eight days, and he said his child was sick at home and he was needed, but he also couldn't leave. The owner was supposed to come that day, but they had heard the story before.

Control is something that as human beings we each want—the ability to choose what happens in our lives. And when we are not in control, it tends to eat away at us. It causes anxiety and stress and makes us irritable. Experts say the desire for control, coupled with inability to attain it, is often at the root of many work and family disagreements.

The good news is that we don't have to be in control, because ultimately God is, and in that each of us can find a sense of peace to keep going. The Bible says, in Luke 12:22-26, "And he [Jesus] said to his disciples, 'Therefore I tell you, do not be anxious about your life, what you will eat, nor about your body, what you will put on. For life is more than food, and the body more than clothing. Consider the ravens: they neither sow nor reap, they have neither storehouse nor barn, and yet God feeds them. Of how much more value are you than the birds! And which of you by being anxious can add a single hour to his span of life? If then you are not able to do as small a thing as that, why are you anxious about the rest?'"

Think about it! Each one of us can try and do life on our own. We can struggle as we try to control that which is out of control and feel like we are being pushed and stretched from all sides. Or we can rely on the One who even takes care of the birds. The choice is ours; this is the one decision we can control.

In this issue you will read stories of other drivers who have given their lives to God, who are allowing Him to be in control so they don't have to be; people who are living in that peace and freedom. They are experiencing the reality of the verse that says, "Give all your worries and cares to God, for he cares about you" (1 Peter 5:7 NLT). If you would like to experience this, please call the number on the front or back of this magazine and talk to one of our chaplains. We want to help.

Lives Changed at the Copperbelt

By Chaplain Simon Ngobola

One day in May, during a lunch break and with only a few minutes left before we resumed work, driver Emmanuel (in blue T-shirt in the picture on right) stopped me and asked for a Good News For Life's Highway magazine. I gave him the magazine and encouraged him to read through the ABCs at the back of it. I had met Emmanuel before, and he had received some magazines from me, but he did not show any interest in inviting the Lord Jesus Christ into his life. This time he asked me to explain the ABCs to him, so I went through them with him step by step. Emmanuel listened attentively, and when I finished and asked him if he was ready to receive the Lord Jesus as his personal Saviour, he gladly did so and I prayed with him.

Just after I finished praying for Emmanuel, driver Paul (in yellow shirt in the picture on left) appeared and he too asked me to share the Gospel with him and to pray with him. I quickly explained the ABCs as I had done with Emmanuel, and Paulo, too, accepted Jesus. I urged both of them to join our WhatsApp group for Bible studies and to join a good Bible-believing church in their hometown for steady spiritual growth.

Six Drivers Accept the Lord

By Chaplain David Phiri

I saw a group of five drivers in a tight space between trucks who were engaged in a loud debate. It was intimidating for a chaplain to interrupt that conversation, but I reminded myself that courage and faith in God is all that's required to minister successfully, even in situations like that. I approached them, but even when I was standing next to them they did not stop arguing among themselves, totally ignoring me. I could not make out what they were arguing about because everybody was talking at the same time. Finally I just said, "Excuse me, gentlemen, I would like to give you this Christian magazine." My addressing them got their attention and one by one they started to shut down.

When all was calm and all eyes were on me, I introduced myself and explained what the Good News for Life's Highway magazine was about. When I handed them the magazines, they skeptically received them. I commended them for the great work they did as truck drivers, and how countries benefited from their labor. As I now had their full attention, I shared the Gospel with them, emphasizing the need for them to have a personal Saviour in their lives, especially in view of all the temptations and dangers they faced on the road. A sixth driver joined the group while I was preaching, and all six—Tawanda, Jonah, Phiri, Itayi, Effort and Lovejoy—accepted Jesus Christ.

Talk the Talk, Walk the Walk

We are all very familiar with the "Professional Drivers" area in a truck stop restaurant. Most truck stops have them. It might be a few tables or a specific section set aside for drivers. In my area there's what we call "The Horseshoe." At "The Horseshoe" there is a lot of driver discussion. Things like driving directions, specific loading or unloading facilities in the area, truck, motor, and transmission types, and highway conditions. You may even hear some stories about various D.O.T. (police) encounters. Sometimes these stories can get out of hand. When you walk away from "The Horseshoe," you might even ask yourself if some of those stories are true. They might be exaggerated a bit. It's like a good fishing story about "the one that got away."

I'm writing today not to talk about the stories, I'm writing to you about making sure that your talk is reflected in the way you walk. James chapter two, verse fourteen starts out by saying "What use is it, my brethren…?" What good is it if we talk about our driving ability, but cannot control our vehicle in the snow or steep grades? What good is it if we talk about doing the right thing, but do the wrong thing? What good is it if we talk about being a Christ follower, but don't act the way His Word says we should? Showing things like love, joy, peace, patience, kindness and gentleness.

What good is it
if we talk about
doing the right thing,
but do the wrong thing?

Just as I am sitting here writing to you, a good friend of mine, also a driver, called to say that his son had just passed away. His son had some birth defects that they've had to deal with for several years. They knew that the day was coming soon that their son would pass away. During these past few years, we've talked about his son, and how he and his wife have had to endure and persevere through these very difficult times. Sometimes we asked God "why." We spent a lot of time in prayer and hospital visits wondering why.

Let me assure you that this driver and his wife walk the exact same way they talk. Even though they ask why, they know and they trust God and His sovereignty. You see, walking like you talk is difficult. It's easy to say one thing, but to live like it is a completely different story. Continuing in James chapter two, verse twenty-two says that Abraham's faith was working with his works, and as a result, his faith was perfected. Abraham did what he believed. Verse twenty-three says that "it was reckoned to him as righteousness."

Let me encourage you today to walk like you talk. Search God's Word and live like it says. If you're not sure if you believe in Jesus, please contact someone here and make sure. Then walk and talk like a person who has been given a new life in Christ. Do the right thing.

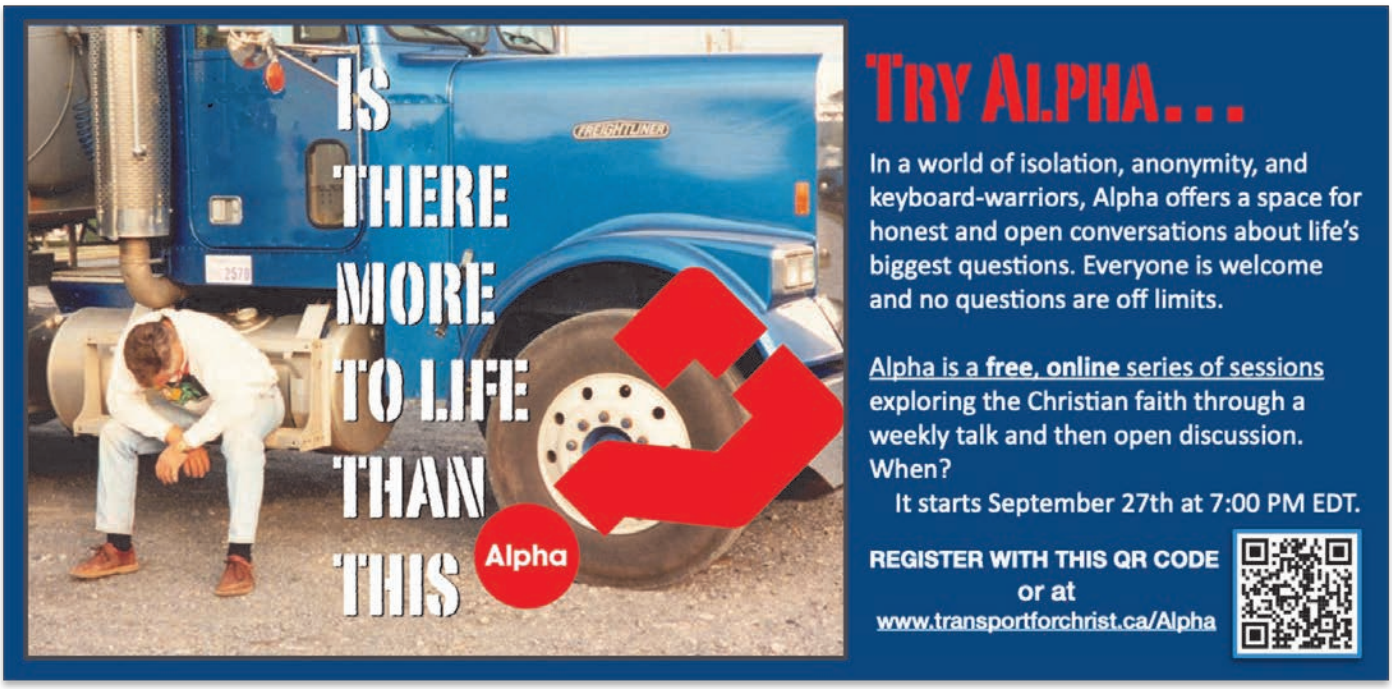
Walking the Drumbo Lot with Chaplain Len

- I noticed some activity in the parking lot and went to check it out. Saw a tow truck and was able to chat with the driver, telling him about the chapel and what we do. We also talked about losing loved ones and I shared about losing our son and what he told us before he passed away—that he was "looking forward to going to Heaven." He shared about his own experiences of loss, thanked me for coming over, and promised to be back.
- Walking the parking lot I met Casey from Ottawa. We started talking and he followed me to the chapel. We sat down and I mostly listened to him. Then I asked how I could help him and he said, "You are helping already—you are listening." He let me pray for him and took some literature I offered.
- That same day I met another driver in the parking lot. We had a good visit, discussing many things, including Covid and Christianity, and I was able to share some of my thoughts. He claimed to be a believer.
- While we were opening the chapel I noticed a young man walking toward us. I met him at the door and we engaged in a conversation that soon turned to spiritual matters. He showed a true interest in Christ, so I used the Gospel of John and the Four Spiritual Laws booklet to share the Gospel. He signed a "Personal Commitment to Jesus Christ" certificate and I cosigned. He has been coming to this truck stop for some time. Today we connected and he accepted Christ!
- We came in on Sunday morning and I was setting up the computer so we could watch our church's live-streamed service when Sue said that we had company. A couple walked in, and the man, James, greeted me as though he knew me well. He then introduced me to his friend, Mary Anne, and asked if I would help her, as she wanted to accept Jesus as her Saviour. I took my Bible and the Four Spiritual Laws and we went into the chapel office. I went through the booklet with her and she prayed the sinner's prayer. I gave her a Bible and some literature.
- A local resident came in to see what this chapel was all about, as he had seen it from the road. He was a Christian, so I explained what we are here for and shared some of the things God has done here. He wished us God's blessings.

We are certainly enjoying our new location. What an honour it is to be here on Christ's behalf!



Snapshots of God at Work in Brazil

As reported by Chaplain Marcelo da Silva Soares

Every day, as we arrive at the Paranaguá Port, we take time to just walk around the trucks parked in the port's sorting yard, greeting the truckers and stopping to chat with them. This type of casual contact helps us understand the problems and needs and the pressures of their job, and our willingness to relate to them many times opens the way for us to share about Christ—about His love for them and the difference He can make in their lives. We carry evangelistic materials to hand out to those who express an interest. We also let them know about the free services we offer at the chapel—blood pressure checks and haircuts.

A Life Restored

We were having a time of singing and ministering the Word of God outside the chapel, with Chaplain Higor playing the guitar, when several truck drivers stopped to listen. Trucker Elias was one of them. Later, as we talked, he admitted that, although he had accepted Christ at an early age and had served God in the church, the difficulties of his work and distance from family affected both his Christian walk and his family, resulting in divorce.

But that morning, when he entered the chapel, the Holy Spirit stirred his heart. During his conversation with me, he shared that he was dating a woman who had no interest in Christ. "I need Christ in my life," he said, "so I'm going to tell her that, either we both walk with Christ, or the relationship is over." He said he'd realized that walking with Christ should be the most important thing in his life. It was a beautiful moment when Elias renewed his commitment to Christ, then told me that he would look for a good church when he returned home because he wanted to serve God in that place. Let us pray for trucker Elias (on the left in the photo).

Back in Fellowship

Marcos walked into the chapel to have his blood pressure checked, and stayed around to talk. He said he was disappointed with preachers of the Word of God because of an experience at a church where he served, in another state. It was a large church, he said, with a pastor who used to be a good servant of God. However, he eventually was carried away by greed and made serious mistakes that resulted in many people leaving the church, Marcos being one of them.

It was evident that the grief and disappointment were still affecting his life, because he couldn't hold back the tears as he was telling his story. I just listened to him, feeling that he needed to unburden himself. After he had shared his story, I ministered to him from the Word of God, then counseled him to talk to the pastor. I also told him that, if he felt he could not go back to the church, he should look for another one, but, most importantly, he should not abandon his faith because our lives have no meaning without God. Before he left we prayed together, and it was a moment of great communion in Christ Jesus. There was a new expression of joy on his face when he left (right on the photo).

Marriage Restored

Trucker Valter was another one who came into the chapel to have his blood pressure checked. As we talked, he shared that his marriage had ended four days before. I asked him what had happened to cause this, and he had to think for a while, then he said, “We fought over our dogs, and this was our last fight.”

I sensed that fight must have been something like the last straw of many other, deeper problems, but I just told Valter, “My dear brother, to end a marriage because of something so small, especially when you have two children, that’s not good!” He was willing to listen, so I opened the Bible and showed him what it says about marriage, and, praise God, Valter understood it was important to fight for his marriage. We prayed together and he left determined to call his wife to apologize and restore the relationship. Let us pray for trucker Valter (left in the photo) and his family.

Imbituba Update

We started the month of July without a chaplain in Imbituba but, thanks be to God, on July 25th the work started again when Chaplain Edilson joined our team. He will be working from Monday to Friday in the chapel located at the Simon Truck Stop. But we praise God that even without a chaplain to hold services, the work didn't stop. Our volunteers continued to go to the truck stop sharing about the love of Christ Jesus with truck drivers and delivering copies of the Bible and other literature. Volunteer Leonardo (with hat in photo) is one who faithfully ministers there.

Serving Truckers in Paraguay

While there are cultural differences from country to country, at the core truckers face much the same problems everywhere, and they can be aggravated when they have to cross borders and deal with customs, as is the case with those at the Puerto Falcon border crossing between Paraguay and Argentina. Those are the truckers to whom Chaplains Baldomero and Heriberto minister.

“People need to be heard and receive a word of love and hope,” reports Chaplain Marcelo, the leader of the ministry in South America. “That is especially true for our truck driver friends who often spend days, and sometimes weeks, away from their families. Being heard and guided according to the Word of God is of fundamental importance for their spiritual wellbeing, and this is what Chaplains Baldomero and Heriberto are doing in Puerto Falcon. The chaplains are taking a word of love, delivering literature, and making themselves available to listen and to help.”

At one of their visits to Puerto Falcon, chaplains Baldomero and Heriberto met the truck drivers on left resting around their trucks. They welcomed the chaplains to join them. They asked for prayer because they had already been away from home for 20 days because they were having problems with their documentation at customs.

Truckers who come to the chapel to have their blood pressure checked are always happy to stay and talk, and are open to listen to the Gospel, have the chaplains pray for them, and receive literature.

Il me fait toujours plaisirs de vous retrouver et de partager un peu de ce qu'il y a sur mon cœur. Cette fois j'aimerais vous présenter un bref aperçu de ce que la Parole de Dieu nous recommande. Dans l'Évangile de Marc au chapitre 16 et au verset 15 et 16, le Seigneur Jésus lui-même envoie ses disciples avec une mission des plus invraisemblable : Allez par tout le monde et prêcher la bonne nouvelle à toute la création. Celui qui croira et qui sera baptisé sera sauvé.

Les disciples ayant été avec Jésus qui les enseignait chaque jour pendant ses trois années de vie publique savaient exactement quelle était la mission qui leur était confiée. Il me fait toujours plaisirs de vous retrouver et de partager un peu de ce qu'il y a sur mon cœur. Cette fois j'aimerais vous présenter un bref aperçu de ce que la Parole de Dieu nous recommande.

Dans l'Évangile de Marc au chapitre 16 et au verset 15 et 16, le Seigneur Jésus lui-même envoie ses disciples avec une mission des plus invraisemblable : Allez par tout le monde et prêcher la bonne nouvelle à toute la création. Celui qui croira et qui sera baptisé sera sauvé. Les disciples ayant été avec Jésus qui les enseignait chaque jour pendant ses trois années de vie publique savaient exactement quelle était la mission qui leur était confiée.

Cette même mission s'est transmise à tous les croyants qui ont succédé aux premiers disciples. C'est une des raisons pour lesquelles nous sommes présents dans quelques (Truck Stop). Notre mission de prédicateur de l'Évangile nous amène être aussi des aides autant pour l'écoute que pour enseigner la Parole de Dieu.

Dans l'Évangile de Jean au chapitre 3 et au verset 16, Jésus nous explique pourquoi il est venu sur cette terre. C'est que Dieu dans son grand amour a envoyé son fils unique afin qu'il prenne sur lui le péché de l'humanité. Lorsque Le fils de Dieu est devenu homme, il est entré dans la mission qui consiste souffrir et mourir à notre place afin que nous puissions avoir accès à la vie éternelle. Tout ceci est un grand mystère qui nécessite des explications et même des temps de prière. Lorsque Jésus a maché dans plusieurs villes d'Israël, il a enseigné et partagé la bonne nouvelle du Royaume de Dieu. Enfin après toutes ces années de noirceur allait venir un temps ou l'humanité pourra comprendre et recevoir la promesse de la vie éternelle.

Cette promesse est la raison principale de notre démarche. Dans l'éternité avec Dieu il n'y aura pas de mouvement religieux, mais seulement des humains sauvés par la grâce provenant du sacrifice de Jésus à la croix.

Sur ce je vous invite à venir nous rencontrer quand la chapelle est ouverte. Vous êtes les bienvenues. Que notre grand Dieu vous garde.

HIS STORY OUR STORY

Terry Wills

Jethro—An Ancient Leadership Coach

Moses, that great prophet mentioned more than 800 times in the Bible, was the man God used to lead the Israelites out of slavery in Egypt to the land of promise. Although he was a reluctant leader, God encouraged and empowered him to orchestrate the exodus of over two million people. His obituary in the Old Testament book of Deuteronomy reads, "Since then, no prophet has risen in Israel like Moses, whom the Lord knew face to face" (Deuteronomy 34:10). The secret of Moses' leadership success was his dependence on God—and his wiliness to consider the advice of people in his life, whom he respected. His father-in-law, Jethro, was one of those people.

Some time into the journey from Egypt to Israel, Jethro came to visit Moses in the desert. Moses shared all about the miraculous deliverance, and together they worshipped the Lord. Later Jethro observed a typical day in the life of Moses: he would wake early, and from morning to evening he would take his seat, and every issue or dispute would be brought before him. He would inform them of the decrees and instructions of the Lord and then decide each case. Jethro observed that Moses' leadership model was not sustainable. He could not keep up with the workload, and the people were not well served. So he suggested that Moses change his process.

Your life and story are important, and God has a special and important part of His History to write with you specifically in mind. Despite our own story, with our less-than-stellar history, God wants to involve us in His Story. The Christian faith is based on the story of God, HIS STORY. God's overarching plan is redemption. God takes broken and fallen people and redeems them, at His expense. Throughout human history, God has chosen to interact with regular people like you and me to fulfil His plan. Each Christian, each follower of Jesus Christ, has a unique place in His Story.

Firstly, he advised Moses to teach the people the decrees and instruction of the Lord, so that they had a good understanding of what was expected of them. Secondly, he suggested that Moses pick capable, God-fearing, trustworthy men, and appoint them as officials over thousands, hundreds, fifties and tens. They should serve as judges for the people, and only bring the difficult cases to Moses. If he did that, he would be able to stand the strain, and the people would go home satisfied. What Jethro was suggesting is what we now refer to as "the rule of law," whereby all citizens in the community are accountable to the same laws and penalties.

The Bible records that Moses listened to everything that Jethro said, and God blessed the proposed new judicial system (Exodus 18). Moses did not just listen and nod, he implemented the new process and it brought order and sustainability to the community.

Jethro did not get a lot of press in the Bible. Just a few verses about where he lived and that he was a farmer, and this rich leadership lesson for Moses and the Israelite community. God used the wisdom of this sheep farmer who lived in a desert area to change the course of history.

It seems that God is in the business of taking regular, ordinary people and using them to influence others for His Kingdom. May we, as truckers who know Jesus, be encouraged to share with others whom we meet the good news that God loves them and gave His Son Jesus to die a terrible death on a cross, to give us new Life and a living Hope. God has a job for you to do, that only you are suited for.

The Trucker's Wife

Chaplain Sam & Janet McIntosh

Putting God First

It's Saturday, July 1st—Canada Day—and Sam is on duty at the chapel today. We are living far away from our family, in a new city, and we haven't been here long enough to have made any really good friends, so I am sitting here all by myself playing Solitaire on my phone. In days past the kids and I would have been celebrating this day with family and/or friends, gathering for a barbecue and fireworks and some fun times, enjoying the day and each other's company.

Sam may or may not have been with us in this, as he was most often on the road. The work, the loads, came first. That's just how it was and I accepted it, for the most part. I had my times when I would feel sorry for myself, being alone so much, shouldering most of the responsibility for our kids and our home.

I would look forward with anticipation for Sam's phone call every Wednesday night; he never missed that call (and that with no cell phones back then!). It was as important to him as it was to me, as he missed being at home with me and the kids as much as we missed him being with us. There was not much he could do about it; the rent had to be paid, all the bills had to be paid, and there had to be food in the fridge for our family. He did what he had to do. So, on those nights when I was feeling sorry for myself, thinking that I had fallen in love with and married a man that didn't have time for me and the kids, only had time for the highway, I had to swallow back my tears and be strong and supportive, for the kids as much as for myself. That's what a trucker's wife does.

Now as I am remembering those days, it came to my mind that my Heavenly Father must have thought something similar about me. Here is this woman that He created, to whom He gave a wonderful life, for whom He gave His only Son, Jesus Christ, and she can't give Him a single thought in her life. This was a time in my life when I had allowed the world to dominate me. I did whatever I wanted, when I wanted, and without giving God a second thought. I had been saved years before this, before I was married, but did not live like it. I took God's gift of love, eternal life, and didn't give any love back to Him. As much as I can justify Sam's situation, as a trucker with a job to do, I cannot justify my turning away from God and letting the world come between us. I didn't accept it with Sam and his job, but I was expecting God to accept it from me. Does any of this sound familiar?

Eventually God said, "Enough! You are Mine and I want you to act like it." Surprisingly, unbeknownst to me Sam was going through the same thing. After a time of regrouping, Sam and I both rededicated our lives to Christ and began to serve Him as He led us, and we have not looked back.

Not long after this, Sam came off the road, parked his truck for good and, in obedience to God's leading, answered the call to serve with Transport For Christ. It has been more than 23 years now, and we have no regrets. We have never been happier. Life is not without its challenges, mind you, but we have God sustaining us and we can bring them to Him, and He helps us through them. They make us stronger.

Perhaps this is what you need to do. Think about it. Pray about it. Let God have His way with you. You won't regret it.

"Therefore, since we are receiving a kingdom which cannot be shaken, let us have grace, by which we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear" (Hebrews 12:28).

A Closing Word
From the Canadian Director

Dennis Finnamore

"So do not fear, for I am with you; do not be dismayed, for I am your God. I will strengthen you and help you; I will uphold you with my righteous right hand" (Isaiah 41:10).

Isn't it comforting to know that God cares and protects us even when we do stupid or foolish things? I, for one, was glad for His protection one day this past July, when I decided to go fishing at the stream about four kilometers from my home. I parked my car and walked down through the woods to a particular spot by the stream. There is a steep incline to get there, and that is where "stupid" set in. I should have looked for a better place, because suddenly I started slipping down and found myself on my back in the stream! The water was very cold and my waders were filling up fast. Anxiety set in and all I could think of was, "No one knows where I am! I have to get out of here!" By now any ideas about fishing were forgotten. Getting up that bank, I had to stop and catch my breath, so I sat down on a fallen tree trunk. I thought it was safe to sit on it, but when I did, it gave way and I went over backwards and hit my head on a tree. I finally made it to my car and went home, reminding myself to think things through the next time.

The thing about life is, you can plan but you cannot predict what is going to happen. I could not predict what was going to happen when I went fishing. For you as a truck driver, you cannot predict when someone may pull out in front of you and cut you off. Or you may get an emergency call from home—all those unpredictables of life.

Those are the times when we need to remember that we are not alone. I think of the words of Psalm 23: "Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for you are with me; your rod and your staff, they comfort me." That assurance gives us peace.

But maybe you don't have that peace. As you are driving along the highway thinking about your situations, why not give them over to God—He will help you through them. He will be there for you through the bad times as well as the good times.

"When anxiety was great within me, your consolation brought me joy" (Psalm 94:19).

About the author: Dennis Finnamore joined the ministry of TFC in 1989 as Regional Director for the Atlantic Provinces. In October of 1991 he added to his duties being chaplain at the chapel in Lutes Mountain. In 1994 he became the Canadian Director of TFC while continuing to minister at the chapel until 2000, when Chaplain Paul Leger assumed the role of lead chaplain at that chapel (now in Salisbury). Do you know where you will spend eternity? You can – it's as easy as ABC...

A Admit that you have sinned.
"For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).
"For the wages of sin is death…" (Romans 6:23a).
God loves us and wants a relationship with us; but He is holy and perfect and our sin separates us from Him.

B Believe that Jesus paid God's price for our sin when He died on the cross.
"But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).
"…but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 6:23b).
God sent Jesus Christ to take the punishment for our sins on Himself, dying on the cross. When He rose from the dead on Easter morning, He broke the power of sin over those who choose to accept Him as their Saviour and Lord.

C Choose to accept Jesus' sacrifice for you and receive the free gift of forgiveness He offers.
"If you confess with your mouth the Lord Jesus and believe in your heart that God has raised Him from the dead, you will be saved…For 'whoever calls on the name of the Lord shall be saved'" (Romans 10:9,13).
"If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9).

You CAN know where you will spend eternity. If you want to begin a relationship with God and allow Him to become your Forgiver and Saviour, pray this prayer and believe it in your heart: "God, I know that I have sinned and need forgiveness. Thank You for sending Jesus to pay the price for my sin so I can have a relationship with You. Today I put my trust in You. Become the leader of my life and help me to follow You from today forward. Amen."
