INSIDE VIEW

Rev. Kevin Scott

Every professional driver knows the importance of a reset. When your hours of service are used up, it doesn't matter how motivated you are or how close you are to your destination—it's time to stop. So you pull into a truck stop, find a parking spot, shut the engine down, and wait.

At first, it can feel like you're wasting valuable time. You're not moving freight. You're not getting any further down the road, and you're certainly not making any money. But every experienced driver knows that reset isn't really lost time—it's an investment in the road ahead. It gives your body a chance to recover, your mind a chance to clear, and helps make sure you're ready for whatever tomorrow's road brings. It also greatly reduces the chances of making a costly mistake.

Maybe life needs to have resets built in, too. Not because someone makes us take them, but because if we don't, life has a way of carrying us along without us ever stopping to ask where we're actually going. Most of us live at a pretty fast pace. There's always another bill to pay, another deadline to meet, another responsibility demanding our attention. Drivers know that better than most. The wheels keep turning, and so does life. Before long, days become weeks, weeks become months, and another year has gone by.

The problem is, when we're always on the go, we rarely take time to think. Are we happy with the direction our lives are heading? Are the things we're giving our time to the things that really matter? Are we building strong relationships with the people we love, or just assuming there will always be time for that later—when things finally slow down? Are we actually living life or just trying to survive it?

These are life questions—some of the most important questions any of us can ask. Because if we never stop to think about where we're headed, we may end up spending years chasing things that don't bring the satisfaction we expected. I've met people who have earned a good living, achieved their goals, and still admitted that something was missing. On the surface everything looked fine, but inside they were asking, "Is this really all there is?"

I believe every one of us has been created with a desire for something more—for purpose, for peace, for a life that means something beyond simply making it through another week. Those questions aren't weaknesses to ignore. They're worth paying attention to. And for me, that's where God comes in. Not because faith is an escape from life's problems, but because it's where I've found the answers to the questions that success, possessions, and busyness could never answer. Jesus didn't spend His time seeking out people who had life all figured out. He met ordinary people who were tired, burdened, discouraged, and searching for hope. And His invitation was simple: "Come to Me... and I will give you rest."

Maybe your next reset could be more than catching up on sleep. Maybe it could be an opportunity to sit quietly for a few minutes without the constant noise of the world. Think about where your life is going, think about what really matters. And if you've never seriously considered God before, that is a great time to start. Why not start with an honest conversation? You don't need fancy words. Just ask Him if He's there. Ask Him to show you the purpose He has for your life. You have nothing to lose by asking—and perhaps more to gain than you ever imagined.

A reset doesn't keep a driver from reaching the destination. It helps make sure they get there safely. Maybe taking a few moments to reset your life can do the same. It might just help you discover not only where you're going, but why the journey matters in the first place.

If you'd like someone to talk these things through with—whether you're struggling with stress, carrying burdens you haven't shared with anyone, or simply have questions about life, faith, or where to go from here—we're here for you. Our chaplains understand the unique challenges of life on the road. There's no pressure, no judgment, and no expectation. Just someone who will listen, care, and walk alongside you. Visit www.DriversMatter.ca to learn more or call our confidential 24/7 Drivers Matter Helpline at 249-506-0100. Sometimes the most important reset begins with a simple conversation. We'd be honoured to be part of that journey.

A Day on the Chapel in Drumbo

Having a golf cart for touring the Drumbo truck lot has been a blessing, as it has enabled the chaplains to connect with a lot more drivers as they roam the lot; these are just a few of their stories.

- A driver from Windsor came in very troubled and stressed because of issues at home. He spent about 1½ hours in the chapel talking, and I made him coffee and prayed with him. I encouraged him to text his wife to start talking out the problems. She called him after receiving his text, and they talked for quite a while. After we talked some more and prayed for him to keep focused on his driving as he headed for home, and that God would help them with their relationship. He left much calmer than he came in, taking a copy of the magazine and a DriversMatter Hotline card that he put in his wallet. He was pleased to have it so that he can call any time he needs someone to talk to or pray with.
- I was preparing to leave the chapel and had just put away the golf cart when I saw a young driver, M., walking up the steps of the chapel. When he saw me, he said, "I need to talk." We went in, sat down, and he began to talk, pouring out his heart. Things were difficult at home; he was away so much and had a young family. They were missing him and he was missing them. I talked with him, encouraged him, and prayed with him. That day he accepted Jesus as his Saviour.
- M. came back to talk again today. He called first to make sure I was there, and then came in to talk as he needed help at home. I prayed with him, encouraged him and shared some Scriptures, then encouraged him to find a church that would support his young family when he was on the road. As he was leaving, he said he felt lighter and asked for something with a TFC logo on it, so I gave him my hat.
- The lot was quiet this morning, but in the afternoon, I was able to visit with several drivers at the fuel pumps and hand out magazines and "Never Alone" DriversMatter cards.
- At one of the pumps I saw someone filling a gas can, so I went over and offered to help him; he thanked me and accepted a ride out to his car that was out of fuel and hadn't made it off the 401 exit ramp.
- I talked with several drivers as I toured the lot and gave away five magazines and a number of DriversMatter cards. I met an owner-operator trying to save some money by working on his own truck before calling in a mechanic. I bought him a coffee and delivered it to his truck.
- Met a young driver driving his dad's 1992 cabover Kenworth—it was beautiful! We had a good visit.
- I was going around the parking lot on the golf cart when I saw an owner-operator underneath his trailer fixing a brake issue. It was a hot day, so I brought him a cold drink and gave him some encouragement. He was on his way to Montreal.
- I took the cart out and toured the yard a few times. On one trip I met a driver from Ottawa who had timed his log out and had decided to shut down until after midnight when he would head back to Ottawa for his morning delivery. He was in his sixties and had run the roads a lot, and we found that we had driven to many of the same places. We had a great visit, and he took a magazine to read when he couldn't sleep.

It Was More Than Just a Book!

How a worn-out "Fuel for Life" devotional became my constant companion on the road

Five years ago, tired after a long overnight drive from South Africa, I parked my truck at the Gateway Truck Park at Beitbridge, Zimbabwe. I was under pressure from my boss to continue the journey as soon as papers came out.

That day I met Chaplain Brian from the Association of Christian Truckers of Southern Africa (ACTSA). As we talked, he handed me a few gifts, one being a small devotional called Fuel for Life. That simple booklet would become one of the most valuable things I would ever carry in my cab.

At first glance it looked like any other booklet. I thanked him, placed it in my truck and continued with my journey. I never imagined that five years later it would still be travelling with me. Today, this small book is faded and tattered—as you can tell from the photo. The pages are stained with grease, diesel, and the fingerprints of countless morning readings. Some pages are held together with tape. Others have dog-eared corners where I paused to mark something that speaks to me. Every highlighted verse carries memories of lonely nights, border delays, mechanical breakdowns, family challenges, and moments when I simply needed hope.

Over these five years, almost everything around me has changed. I have changed transport companies. I have driven different trucks. My routes have changed. But one thing has never changed—that little Fuel for Life devotional has remained beside me in the truck.

Today I have the privilege of representing ACTSA's ministry along the Harare-Beira Corridor, one of Southern Africa's busiest and most competitive transport routes. Thousands of trucks move between Zimbabwe and the Port of Beira every month, carrying the goods that keep our economies alive.

There is an old saying that goes: "A Bible that is falling apart usually belongs to someone whose life isn't." Whenever I look at my devotional, that saying comes alive. That little devotional has accompanied me through seasons of uncertainty, disappointment, and celebration. Today, whenever I meet another driver searching for hope, I understand why ACTSA continues distributing these devotionals and many other materials.

Thank you, Chaplain Brian. Thank you, ACTSA. And thank you to the people who ensure this ministry to truck drivers continues to exist at borders.

Truckers often have very long waits at the Beitbridge crossing (above); the Gateway truck stop (right) is a resting spot for them, where they can also receive encouragement and ministry from our chaplains.

Comments by Chaplain Brian

When I saw the condition of that small devotional book I gave to Precious many years ago, I was amazed; it was unbelievable that someone would still be holding on to something in such condition. I was reminded that the small things we do have eternal impact! I was reminded of Jesus' words in Matthew 25:40-45: "And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me. Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels: For I was an hungred, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not. Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungred, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee? Then shall he answer them, saying, Verily I say unto you, In as much as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me."

Precious is virtually one of our founding members, but because of changing jobs sometimes it will be many months or even a year before we see him again. He is active on our WhatsApp platform and often, when we get materials, we send some to him to distribute along the busy Harare-Mutare- Beira Corridor.

A Life Transformed by the Gospel

By Chaplain Dr. Norbert Mbwiliza
Norbert & Friends Missions, Tanzania

Trucker Aimable (right) said his life was changed as a result of his encounter with a chaplain.

Our Transport For Christ team in Tanzania recently met and ministered to a driver in Shunu, Kahama, during his journey from Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, to Rwanda. This driver shared the dramatic result that encounter had in his life:

"My name is Aimable Nzayibaho, and I am a truck driver. While travelling from Dar es Salaam to Rwanda, I met a servant of God in Shunu, Kahama. At that time, I had not accepted Jesus Christ as my Saviour. I was suffering from physical weakness and had no peace in my heart.

"After hearing the Word of God, I was deeply touched and decided to receive Jesus Christ as my Lord and Saviour. The servant of God prayed for me, and from that moment I experienced a remarkable change. The physical weakness disappeared, and I was filled with peace in my heart. I thank God for saving my life."

Aimable's testimony is one among many that demonstrate the transforming power of the Gospel. His story reminds us that a single conversation, a Bible placed into someone's hands, a simple prayer, and the work of the Holy Spirit can change not only one life but also influence families, workplaces, and entire communities.

HISTORY OUR STORY

Josiah, A Young King Who Made a Difference

The nation of Judah was in a dark place. For years the people of Judah had drifted away from God. King Manasseh, Josiah's grandfather, reigned for fifty-five years, leading Judah into widespread idolatry. Pagan altars filled the land, idol worship became commonplace, and even the Temple of the Lord had been defiled. His son, Amon, Josiah's father, followed the same path but ruled for only two years before he was assassinated.

Into this troubled time stepped an unlikely leader. Josiah became king when he was only eight years old! Imagine the responsibility placed on a young boy. Yet, the Bible tells us something remarkable about him: "He did what was right in the eyes of the Lord and walked in all the ways of David his father; he did not turn aside to the right or to the left" (2 Kings 22:2).

As Josiah matured, so did his desire to honour God. At sixteen, he began to seek the Lord, and by the age of twenty he started removing the idols and places of false worship throughout Judah. At age 26, he began to repair the Temple of God. While repairs to the Temple were underway, the high priest Hilkiah discovered the Book of the Law. It had been neglected for so long that its words had become unfamiliar to the nation. When Josiah heard it read, he was deeply convicted. He tore his robes in sorrow because he realized how far God's people had wandered from His commands.

Your life and story are important, and God has a special part of His Story to write with you specifically in mind. Throughout human history, He has chosen to interact with regular people like you and me to fulfil His plan. Each Christian, each follower of Jesus Christ, has a unique place in His Story.

Many leaders would have ignored what they heard or explained it away—Josiah did neither. He humbled himself before God, gathered the people together, and publicly read God's Word. He renewed the nation's covenant with the Lord and led the people in turning back to Him. He reinstituted the Passover feasts to celebrate God's deliverance of the Jewish nation from slavery in Egypt.

Josiah understood that hearing God's Word was not enough—it had to be obeyed. That truth remains just as relevant today. We live in a world where there are countless messages competing for our attention. Yet, the Bible continues to be God's unchanging truth. Reading it is important, but allowing it to shape our decisions, attitudes and relationships is what transforms lives.

Most of us will never lead a nation as Josiah did. We won't stand before thousands calling a country back to God. But each of us has been given something just as significant: a circle of influence. For some, that circle is a family. For others, it is a trucking company, a repair shop, a dispatch office, a warehouse, or the cab of a truck where conversations happen one person at a time. Every day God places people in our path who need encouragement, kindness, hope, and the message of His saving grace; they need to know that God loves each of us and that Jesus died to take the punishment of our sins—faith in Jesus and His work brings eternal life.

As God's Word shapes our hearts, it naturally influences the way we treat others. A life marked by integrity, humility, compassion, and faithfulness points people toward Christ far more powerfully than words alone.

King Josiah's influence changed a nation because he first allowed God's Word to change him. Our sphere of influence may not be as large as King Josiah's, but to the people God has placed in our lives, it is no less important. May we faithfully share the love and truth of Jesus Christ wherever He has called us, trusting that God can use one obedient life to make an eternal difference in the lives of others.

Reporting from the Brazilian Ministry Front

By Chaplain Marcelo da Silva Soares

The ministry in Brazil started more than a decade ago at the Paranagua Port (which has a daily traffic of more than 1,200 trucks on average). Today, in addition to four locations (see list on back cover), it has expanded into several practical ways to serve truckers:

- Once a week, Chaplain Marcelo goes to Empresa Sudmar (one of the largest transport industries in Brazil) to hold a devotional meeting for the truckers waiting for their load.
- Chaplain Marcelo and his team also hold a daily "live" devotional that drivers can access in their trucks (or anywhere else) via Instagram or Facebook.
- There is also has a daily message at the lot, using loudspeakers.
- Once a week free practical services are offered to truckers, such as haircuts, blood pressure and glucose level checks, and more.

These are ways the chaplains express their love and concern for a segment of the working world that is often ignored.

However, the core of the ministry is still to communicate to truckers and those in the trucking industry the message of the Gospel that can change their lives for eternity. And lives are being changed—as it happened recently to truckers Cristiano and Heverton, reported here by Chaplain Marcelo:

God's Timing Is Always Perfect!—When I went over to Cristiano (left in photo) to hand him some literature, he stepped out of his truck saying God had sent me to him! He said he had come to a point where he really needed God in his life—that he felt distant from God's presence and scared because of some situations that had happened. He was living a completely wrong life, he said, using drugs to stay awake and work longer on the road. That's something that many truck drivers do but end up becoming slaves to, and he admitted that was happening to him: his life was totally upside down; he wasn't sleeping anymore, and his marriage was falling apart. He repeated that our presence there was from God and that he really needed it. We opened God's Word and shared how he could find freedom by committing his life to Christ and trusting Him to give him the strength to walk in His ways. Cristiano prayed with us, committing his life to Jesus.

His Friend Knew What He Needed Most—Trucker Heverton (left in photo) came to our chapel at the encouragement of his friend Marcio, who accepted Jesus here in our chapel four years ago. Heverton shared some of his story with us, saying he was going through emotional difficulties and struggling with drinking, which was causing serious family problems. As he opened his heart, we shared the Gospel with him, and to the honour and glory of our Lord Jesus Christ, Heverton prayed, committing his life to the Lord.

One of my favourite books of the Bible is found in the New Testament and it's the book of Philippians. If you haven't read it in its entirety, please do. It's only four chapters long and it's filled with a lot of practical things that we can apply to our lives today. The Apostle Paul is the author, and he writes it during a time in which he was literally chained to a Roman guard. So, under his circumstances, we might not guess that the main theme of the book is joy. Hard to fathom, right? Well, it is.

He starts out in chapter one talking about joy in living. Verse six says, "for I am confident of this very thing, that he who began a good work among you will complete it by the day of Jesus Christ." So, whatever is happening in your life right now, whether good or bad, you can be confident that Jesus is not done with you yet. He will complete His work in you and that should bring you joy.

Chapter two continues with joy in serving. Paul gives us three examples, including himself, Timothy, and Epaphroditus. They are all serving the Lord in their work. Each of us can serve the Lord right where we work by following their example. Verse three says, "do nothing from selfishness or empty conceit, but with humility consider one another as more important than yourselves." It goes on to say in verse fourteen that we should "do all things without complaining or arguments." We can have real joy while serving others and not complaining about it. You don't have to go very far today to find people that complain. We can stand out among the crowd simply by not complaining.

Chapter three says that we can find joy by simply believing in Jesus. Verse eight says that anything going on in our lives, whether easy or difficult, doesn't count compared to knowing Christ Jesus as our Lord. The things that we've lost we "can count mere rubbish so that [we] may gain Christ." Verse eleven states, "if somehow I may attain to the resurrection from the dead." We die to ourselves when we give our all to Jesus. Verse thirteen and fourteen continue that thought, stating that we can forget what lies behind, what our past is, and look forward to the things the Lord has for us in the future, and that should bring us joy.

The last point that I'd like to make here is that, while we are living out our salvation through Jesus*, we can know for sure that this world we live in—whether Canada, USA, Russia, Brazil, Africa, or anywhere else—is not our home. Our final home, our final citizenship, will be in Heaven, and we will be transformed from our lowly condition into conformity with His glorious body, all by the power of Jesus. And that will bring you joy.

Il Lui Manquait Une Chose

Chaque jour est une nouvelle opportunité que Dieu nous offre pour témoigner de son amour et annoncer la Bonne Nouvelle de Jésus-Christ.

Aujourd'hui, dans un parc à camions, nous avons eu le privilège de rencontrer deux chauffeurs namibiens appartenant au mouvement rastafari. Après avoir accepté d'échanger avec nous, l'un d'eux nous a expliqué leur manière de vivre:

"Nous, les rastas, sommes des hommes de paix. Nous ne sommes pas violents et nous respectons tout le monde."

À travers ces paroles, il voulait nous faire comprendre qu'ils n'avaient besoin de rien de plus. C'est alors que l'aumônier leur a dit avec amour: "Il vous manque une chose."

Cette simple phrase a retenu toute leur attention.

En nous appuyant sur Marc 16:16, nous sommes venus vous annoncer ce qui vous manquait réellement. votre croyance actuelle, aussi sincère soit-elle, ne peut pas vous donnez le salut ni la vie éternelle. Ce n'est ni une vie paisible, ni l'absence de violence, ni une bonne conduite qui sauvent une âme. Seule la foi en Jésus-Christ, reçu comme Seigneur et Sauveur personnel, donne le pardon des péchés, le salut et la vie éternelle.

Au cours de notre échange, l'un d'eux nous a posé une question très sincère: «Si je décide de croire en Jésus-Christ, que deviendront mes cheveux.

"Nous ne sommes pas venus pour te couper les cheveux, mais pour te présenter Jésus-Christ. Pour le reste, laisse le Seigneur te conduire. Le Saint-Esprit saura te convaincre personnellement de ce qu'il te demandera de faire."

À la gloire de Dieu, les deux chauffeurs ont décidé de donner leur vie à Jésus-Christ!

Le salut est offert à tous. Dieu ne fait acception de personne. Peu importe ton passé, ton origine ou ton parcours, si tu viens à Jésus avec foi, il t'accueille, te pardonne et te donne une vie nouvelle.

Toute la gloire revient à notre Seigneur Jésus-Christ pour cette rencontre bénie!

A Closing Word
From the Canadian Director

Noise

Noise is everywhere. You can't easily escape the drone of man-made noise. Think about how life has changed in the last 60 years. The ever-increasing commotion ignited with portable transistor radios and Walkmans has exploded to smartphones and wireless earbuds. We carry noise around with us: ringtones, alerts to emails and texts, the roar of engines, hum of tires, Spotify music and constant podcasts fill the airways. Noise is everywhere.

This constant buzz is changing us, with many finding it impossible to manage without it—even when it negatively impacts concentration and social interactions. A post in Psychology Today (of September 10, 2015) asked a serious question: "Who is afraid of silence?" The author, Piero Ferrucci, has a suspicion that we all—society as a whole—are afraid of silence.

This is how some have described it:
"Silence is a monster to me."
"I feel like my mind is louder when it's quiet."
"Silence feels like emptiness, and emptiness feels like failure."
"When it's quiet, I can't get out of my own head."

Could it be that silence is uncomfortable because it reminds us of our isolation and our mortality? Is noise actually an insulating distraction from our loneliness—our separation from others and from God?

The Bible has a much different view on silence: it is to be sought out as a place to interact with God. Profound biblical statements like "Be still and know that I am God" (Psalm 46:10) instruct us that God is found when the distractions cease and the noise ends. Jesus exhibited this lifestyle of embracing silence as He sought out times alone, away from distractions: "And rising very early in the morning, while it was still dark, he [Jesus] departed and went out to a desolate place, and there he prayed" (Mark 1:35).

Instead of fearing silence, why not embrace it in your life? Turn off the noise, let your thoughts settle, and begin quiet conversations with God. It's in this stillness with God that our isolation and the questions of our mortality turn into peace.

Do you know where you will spend eternity? You can – it's as easy as ABC...

A Admit that you have sinned.
"For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Romans 3:23).
"For the wages of sin is death…" (Romans 6:23a).
God loves us and wants a relationship with us; but He is holy and perfect and our sin separates us from Him.

B Believe that Jesus paid God's price for our sin when He died on the cross.
"But God demonstrates His own love toward us, in that while we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5:8).
"…but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 6:23b).
God sent Jesus Christ to take the punishment for our sins on Himself, dying on the cross. When He rose from the dead on Easter morning, He broke the power of sin over those who choose to accept Him as their Saviour and Lord.

C Choose to accept Jesus' sacrifice for you and receive the free gift of forgiveness He offers.
"If you confess with your mouth the Lord Jesus and believe in your heart that God has raised Him from the dead, you will be saved…For 'whoever calls on the name of the Lord shall be saved'" (Romans 10:9,13).
"If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 John 1:9).

You CAN know where you will spend eternity. If you want to begin a relationship with God and allow Him to become your Forgiver and Saviour, pray this prayer and believe it in your heart: "God, I know that I have sinned and need forgiveness. Thank You for sending Jesus to pay the price for my sin so I can have a relationship with You. Today I put my trust in You. Become the leader of my life and help me to follow You from today forward. Amen."

If you prayed this prayer, we would like to help you begin your exciting new journey. Please send us an email to transportforchrist@outlook.com and let us know, so we can help you along this road.
